

Module 4: Self-Discovery Through Facing Life's Obstacles

Topic 1 Content: Point of View

Introduction

Point of View

Introduction

In this interactivity, click on each of the markers to explore the different points of view that authors can use in literature.

+ First-Person

+ Third-Person

+ Third-Person Omniscient

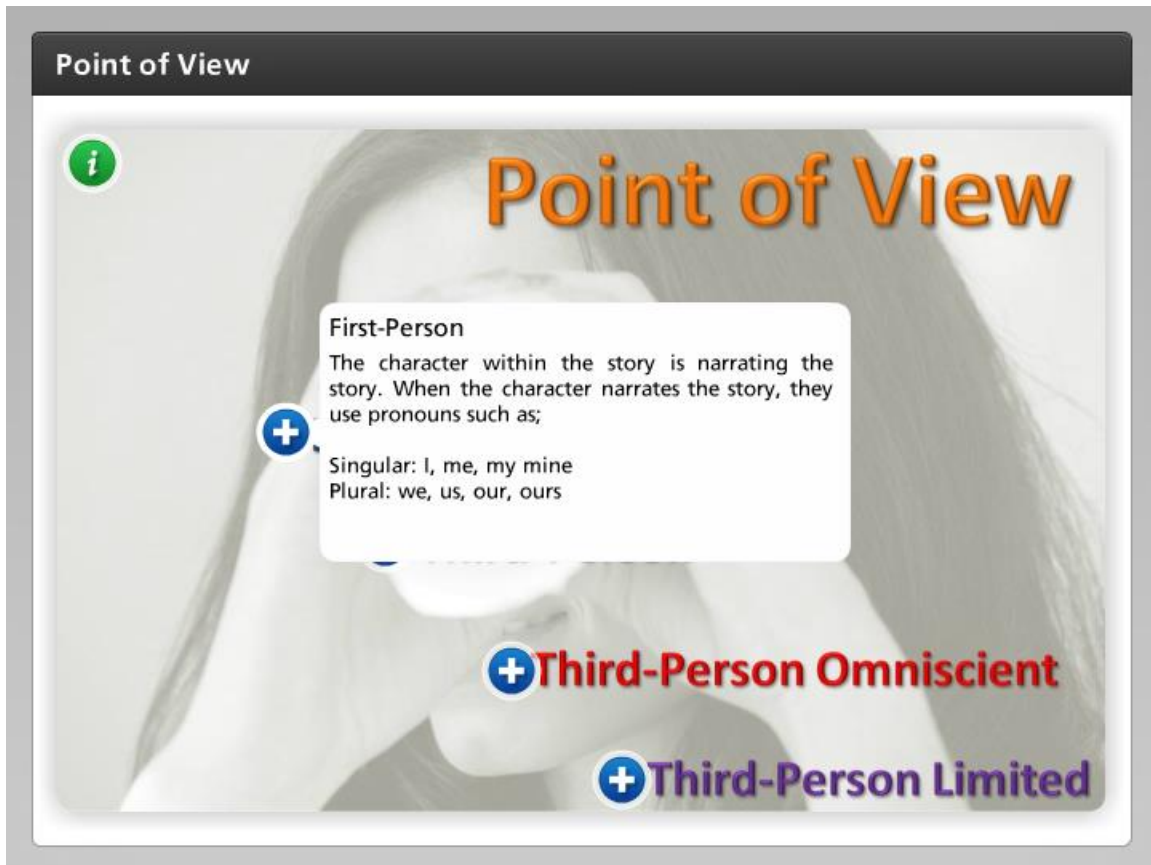

+ Third-Person Limited

In this interactivity, click on each of the markers to explore the different points of view that authors can use in literature.

Module 4: Self-Discovery Through Facing Life's Obstacles

Topic 1 Content: Point of View

First-Person

The infographic is titled "Point of View" in orange text at the top right. It features a background image of a woman's face. In the top left corner, there is a green circle with a white lowercase 'i'. A white text box with a blue plus sign in a circle on its left side contains the following text: "First-Person", "The character within the story is narrating the story. When the character narrates the story, they use pronouns such as;", "Singular: I, me, my mine", and "Plural: we, us, our, ours". Below this text box, there are two more labels: "+ Third-Person Omniscient" in red text and "+ Third-Person Limited" in purple text, both preceded by a blue plus sign in a circle.

The character within the story is narrating the story. When the character narrates the story, they use pronouns such as;

Singular: I, me, my mine

Plural: we, us, our, ours

Module 4: Self-Discovery Through Facing Life's Obstacles

Topic 1 Content: Point of View

Third-Person

Point of View

Point of View

+ First- Third-Person
The narrator is a voice outside of the piece of literature. As an author tells a fictional story in the third person, they use pronouns such as;

+ Singular: he, him, his, she, her, hers, it, its

+ Plural: they, they, their, theirs

+ Third-Person Omniscient

+ Third-Person Limited

The narrator is a voice outside of the piece of literature. As an author tells a fictional story in the third person, they use pronouns such as;

Singular: he, him, his, she, her, hers, it, its

Plural: they, they, their, theirs

Module 4: Self-Discovery Through Facing Life's Obstacles

Topic 1 Content: Point of View

Third-Person Omniscient

Point of View

Point of View

- + First-Person
- + Third-Person
 - Third-Person Omniscient
 - + A voice from outside the story is able to tell the thoughts and actions of all of the characters within the story.
 - + Third-Person Limited

A voice from outside the story is able to tell the thoughts and actions of all of the characters within the story.

Module 4: Self-Discovery Through Facing Life's Obstacles

Topic 1 Content: Point of View

Third-Person Limited

Point of View

+ First-Person

+ Third-Person

+ Third-Person Omniscient

+ Third-Person Limited

Third-Person Limited
A voice from outside the story is able to tell the thoughts and actions of only one character.

A voice from outside the story is able to tell the thoughts and actions of only one character.