Create a Writing Portfolio

Publishing Your Research Paper

Create a Writing Portfolio

A writing portfolio is an excellent endeavor if you are considering pursuing a future in writing. Collecting your best pieces into one portfolio will come in handy when potential schools and/or employers ask to see your writing samples. Your portfolio can utilize a print format, a digital format, or both.

Enter a Writing Contest

There are numerous writing contests held every year. If you are interested, ask your English instructor or guidance counselor to help you find one, or conduct your own Internet search. Make sure that your written work meets the requirements of the contest, and select contests that do not require entrance fees.

Participate in a Writers' Conference

A writers' conference is usually sponsored by a writing group or association for the purpose of developing writing skills and offering professional support. By participating in such a conference, you may be able to share your work with more experienced writers who can offer feedback. You can also attend workshops to improve your writing or read the work of others to gain inspiration.
