Je and J'

Je/J'
I

This personal pronoun can be je or j'. If the pronoun I occurs in front of a verb that begins with a vowel, drop the 'e' and use an apostrophe.

For example, if you want to say, "I come from France," you would convey, "Je viens de France." Notice that je was used in the sentence because 'viens' is a verb that begins with a consonant. Conversely, if you want to say, "I have homework," you would convey, "J'ai des devoirs." Notice that j' was used in the sentence because 'ai' is a verb that begins with a vowel.

On

On
One, they, we

On has several translations. It can be used in an impersonal sense with a translation of "one," "they", or "people." In conversations about small groups of friends, on can be used to represent "we".
